

Unit 22: PRESENT CONTINUOUS

This formation usually means ‘now — for a limited period of time’. We use the present tense of the auxiliary verb be (Unit 17) before the -ing form of the lexical verb (Unit 3).

1 Formation (be + -ing form)

a STATEMENTS

EXAMPLES: I am writing this letter to thank you.
Bus fares are going up today.
He is not taking the exam this year.
They aren't having a lesson at the moment.

b QUESTIONS

EXAMPLES: Am I disturbing you?
How much are they going up by?
Who is taking the exam this year?
Why aren't they having a lesson?

NOTICE: For spelling problems with the -ing form of the verb, look at Appendix 6.

2 Use

a PRESENT ACTIVITY

EXAMPLES: Be quiet! The Prime Minister is speaking.
They are having dinner at the moment.
What are you doing there?

b TEMPORARY STATE

EXAMPLES: She is staying at the Metropolitan Hotel.
He isn't feeling very well today.

c CHANGING STATE

EXAMPLES: Quick! The bus is stopping.
Pollution in the city is getting worse.

d FUTURE PLANS

EXAMPLES: We are leaving at ten o'clock tomorrow.

NOTICE: Present continuous or present simple or present perfect? (Unit 39)
Present continuous or going to or will? (Unit 41)
